WMNF looks to user fees to help keep up with upkeep costs

- Two-year trial begins this year
- Opinion sought on whether fees should be mandatory or voluntary

By ALISON ALOISIO

Hikers, snowmobilers and others who enjoy the White Mountain National Forest may soon be paying a user fee, prompted by federal budget cuts to the U.S. Forest Service.

The "fee pilot program," as it is referred to by the USFS, would go into effect in May. "The question is not whether we should participate in the pilot program," said Donna Hepp, forest supervisor, "but how we should participate."

The service is proposing a passport system for users that would cost $20 annually or $5 for a seven-day period. USFS is currently seeking public input regarding whether the fee program should be voluntary or mandatory.

Money collected from fees would be used on what public affairs assistant Pat Nasta describes as a backlog of maintenance in the forest.

"A combination of a decreased budget and more visitors is making it tough to maintain our trail system and facilities," Nasta said.

This year's recreation budget was cut by 15 percent, and it may be cut by another 20 percent by the year 2000.

"People pay to support the forest with their taxes, and they may wonder why they should have to pay fees. We've kept it free as long as we could, but we can't pay for maintenance now."

Nasta said maintenance projects are prioritized according to safety needs, resource protection and user education.

She cited deteriorated trail bridges and eroded trails as examples of areas where work is needed.

As for user education, "If we can educate people on how to better use the trails, we won't have as much need for maintenance," Nasta said.

The proposed passport to be used in the fee system would be displayed in vehicles left unattended on land managed by WMNF. The passports would be available at Forest Service sites and other locations convenient to the public, such as commercial businesses.

office to Evans Notch building?

By MICHAEL DANIELS

User fees are not the only measure being explored by the WMNF for dealing with federal funding cutbacks -- the Forest Service is also considering an office-space-for-services swap with the town of Bethel.

Discussions between the town and the Forest Service are still in the very preliminary stages, but what the Forest Service is offering is to provide office and garage space for the Bethel Police Department at the former Evans Notch District Office on Route 2.

The town would pay no rent for the space, but would provide limited maintenance and plowing, and pay for a portion of the utilities.

Staff cutbacks over recent years, and the shifting of other staff to the new Ammonoosuc District Office in Gorham have left the Evans Notch facility with only two full-time permanent employees, plus a number of part-time senior-program workers.

As a result, the Forest Service now has little use for the rear room in the Bethel building.

In order to reduce the fixed costs of maintaining the building, the Forest Service has suggested the room (just over 1,000 square feet) might be used by the Bethel Police Department.

From the town's perspective the benefits of such an arrangement would be to free up space in the town office building and to provide garage space for the two town cruisers. (The back-up cruiser is now parked, uncovered, near the town garage.)

The Board of Selectmen has agreed to have Town Manager Madeleine Henley and Police Chief Dale Bellman explore the matter further.

But the board has also expressed concern that the town might be taken on new expenses with such an arrangement, something board members indicated they would be reluctant to approve.

KEEP US IN MIND

It's that time of year when your local Rotary Club must start gathering items for our annual auction. The proceeds of all our efforts go to support such projects as the Senior Citizen Christmas Dinner, Christmas Food Baskets for the needy, student scholarships, support the local health facilities, summer camp tuitions, area athletes expenses, disabled individual needs, etc.

If you're cleaning the garage, office or cellar, let us get rid of those unneeded items for you. Call Roger Conant, 824-2117 or 824-2269 for pickup.

Help us with your support of our projects. It's a good feeling!

Electrical fire guts Andover Town Office

By ALISON ALOISIO

Quick action by the Andover Fire Department -- combined with a little luck -- kept damage to a minimum in an electrical fire at the Town Office Saturday.

"If you have to have a fire, and you're working with a volunteer fire department, it doesn't get any better than that," said fire chief Ken Dixon of the fire's circumstances.

"I was told about the pole first, by the road foreman, and went up to look at it," said Dixon. "When I got up there, I saw a large volume of smoke coming out from under the eaves. The tone went off at the same time."

Dixon then unlocked the doors to the office to prepare for entry with the arrival of the trucks.

Firefighters used water from town hydrants and a tanker truck to douse the flames. They had the fire out in about five minutes.

Town records, which were stored in closets or cabinets, were not damaged. But other paper material and equipment left out in the open were charred or melted from the heat.

Dixon said the fire generated temperatures of about 1,000 degrees.

Major political contributions to local legislators in 1996

By STEVEN STYCOS

The candidates that spend the most money win -- at least that was the pattern in local legislative races. State Senators Norman Ferguson and Richard Bennett and state Representatives Alvin Barth, Tom Winsor and Robert Cameron all outspent their Democratic opponents by healthy amounts, according to campaign finance reports. All five were re-elected by solid margins.

To collect 55 percent of the vote, Ferguson spent $12,975. His opponent, Rumford Democrat Douglas Lothrop, however, spent only $5,973.

Bennett's winning percentage, 64 percent, was larger than Ferguson's and he also spent much more. Bennett spent $26,737 in his campaign to return to the Legislature after a two-year absence. His opponent, Norway Democrat Brian Sessions, spent only $5,219.

Because state representatives' districts have less than one quarter the population of state senators' districts, house candidates typically spend less in their campaigns. That was true for Barth, Winsor and Cameron.

Below is a summary of the large contributions made to area legislators as reported on their 1996 campaign finance reports.

State Senator Norman Ferguson: Ferguson received most of his largest contributions from local business people. Speedway owner Robert Bahre, Bethel contractor Dennis Wilson and Sunday River Skiway all contributed $1,000. The two-term senator also received $500 contributions from Burlington Homes president Theresa DesFosses, Oxford mobile home dealer John Schiavi, Bethel lumber mill owner Robert Chadbourne, International Paper, Boise Cascade, Portland businessman Robert Monks, the Maine Trial Lawyers Association and the Republican Party campaign fund, Committee for a Responsible Senate.

Many of Ferguson's other contributors have legislative lobbyists to push for laws that will benefit their businesses. Last session, when Republicans controlled the state Senate, Ferguson was the Senate chair of the Legal and Veterans Affairs Committee, which regulates liquor and tobacco. And his list of contributors includes several industry groups, including the Tobacco Institute ($200), R.J. Reynolds ($200), Anheuser-Busch ($200), the Distilled Spirits Council ($100), Pepisco ($100) and Lewiston Central Distributors ($100).

Other lobby groups which contributed to Ferguson were pharmaceutical companies Claxo Wellcome ($100) and Merck ($200), the New England Cable TV Association ($100), the Maine Motor Transport Association ($250), NYNEX ($100), the independent insurance agents association ($150), the Manufactured Housing Association ($200), the American Insurance Association ($100), the Maine Hospital Association ($300), the Maine Association of Community Banks ($250), the Maine Association of Realtors ($100), the Maine Optometric Association ($100) and Ski Maine ($200).

He also received $250 contributions from International Game Technology of Nevada and Old Orchard Beach gambling businessman William Danton.

Ferguson also received a batch of contributions from companies and individuals connected to the energy business, including Norway oil distributor Jinger Duryea ($250), Portland Natural Gas ($100), West Peru oil dealer James Blaisdell ($200) and the Maine Oil Dealers Association ($250).

Individuals who contributed were Lewiston Lawyer Ann Robinson ($100), Karen Brown-Mohr ($200), Hanover retiree Charles Everett ($100), Oxford builder Peter Cornell ($200), Fryeburg Optometrist Scott Ferguson ($150), Rand Stowell of Dixfield ($150), Rumford contractor William Porter ($200), Peru retiree Dale Swett ($100), Mexico lawyer Paul Dumas ($100) and Eugenia Dickson of Rumford ($100).

Other businesses which contributed to Ferguson were Bestway Leasing of South Paris ($100), Kimball Associates of Mexico ($100), Bancroft Contracting of South Paris ($200), Bethel developer, The Merrill Company ($200), Bessey Motor Sales of South Paris ($250), Norway McDonald's operator, LeClerc Management ($100), Rumford VFW Post 1641 ($300), Doctors Kirk and Everett of Rumford ($100).

Finally, Ferguson received $300 from the Oxford County Republican Committee.

Senator Richard Bennett: Bennett's largest contributors were the Republican campaign fund, We Mean Business ($2,534), the Maine Republican Party ($1,000), Portland businessman Robert Monks ($1,000), Fairlane Mobile Homes of Lunenburg, Mass., ($1,000), the Oxford County Republican Committee ($812), and The Oxford Group printing company ($1,118).

He also received $500 contributions from Linda Bean Fowlkers of Freeport, Oxford mobile home dealer John Schiavi, the Republican campaign fund, Committee for a Responsible Senate, the Maine Bankers Association, ski resort owner Les Otten, International Paper, the Maine Dental Association, Massachusetts investor Stephen Binder, the credit card company MBNA and Burlington Homes president Theresa DesFosses.

Other individuals and companies connected with the mobile home and building industry who aided Bennett were East Holden manufactured housing retailer Allen Benner ($100), Twin Town Homes of Oxford ($100), Waterville manufactured housing businessman David Green ($100), Northern Homes Sales of New Hampshire ($200), Waldoboro manufactured housing businessman Carl Erickson ($100), the Manufactured Housing Association ($200), Burlington homes manager Donald Chadwell of Casco ($100) and Oxford modular building company, Schiavi Leasing ($150).

Other businesses and lobby groups making contributions more than $100 were Champion International ($400), the independent insurance agents association ($300), the Maine Bankers Association ($500), the Maine Association of Community Banks ($250), the Maine Hospital Association ($400), the Maine Association of Realtors ($250), the Maine Oil Dealers Association ($250), Bestway Leasing of South Paris ($200), Ketner Investment of Norway ($300) and Boise Cascade ($300).

DENIED AGAIN—The Greenwood Planning Board Monday denied an application from Carlton and Leona Cole for a permit to allow a trailer on their Twitchell Pond lot. Gordon Brown, acting in the Cole's behalf, had submitted the application for a 14 x 70-foot trailer. The board rejected the request because the proposal did not comply with shoreland zoning requirements. Specifically, there is insufficient space for the trailer and a septic system. In 1995 the board denied a request to build a home on the site. The Appeals Board last year denied a variance for the home, but said a seasonal, recreational trailer could be set up and a septic system installed to service it.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, Feb. 6, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be the annual historical film night with "Joshua Chamberlain and the 20th Maine" being the featured presentation for the evening. The meeting is open to anyone interested.

Without a military background or training, Chamberlain, a philosophy and religion professor at Bowdoin College, became one of the most highly regarded commanders of the Civil War. So much so that General Grant selected him to officially receive the final surrender of Southern forces at Appomattox, Grant recognized the true greatness of the man and his contribution to Union victory, but it would take more than a century for Chamberlain's reputation to achieve the universal level it merited.

For years, Maine historians and Civil War aficionados have known of Chamberlain's significance in the Civil War, but it was not until Ken Burns produced his Civil War series on PBS that this Maine general began to gain the credit he so richly deserved. With the production of films like "Gettysburg," Chamberlain's fame grew to the point that it appears secure for the rest of time.

John J. Pullen's history of Chamberlain's regiment, "The Twentieth Maine: A Volunteer Regiment in the Civil War," first published in 1957, focused national attention on the role the 20th played during the Civil War. Three years later, Willard M. Wallace published "Soul of the Lion: A Biography of General Joshua Chamberlain," which was the first modern full-scale study of the general's life and career.

LOOKING BACK

10 years ago: Sunday River Ski Area applied to the Department of Environmental Protection for a discharge permit to allow discharge into the Androscoggin River from a planned sewer plant. Kathleen Mercereau started work as the administrative assistant of Woodstock prior to appointment as town manager. The Town of Bethel submitted an application to the Federal Aviation Administration for nearly $500,000 in funds to reconstruct Col. Dyke Field. The SAD44 ski-a-thon for grade school students, held at Gould Academy, was the first such event held in Maine. Deaths: Frederick Stanley, Frank Curtis, Josephine Haskell.

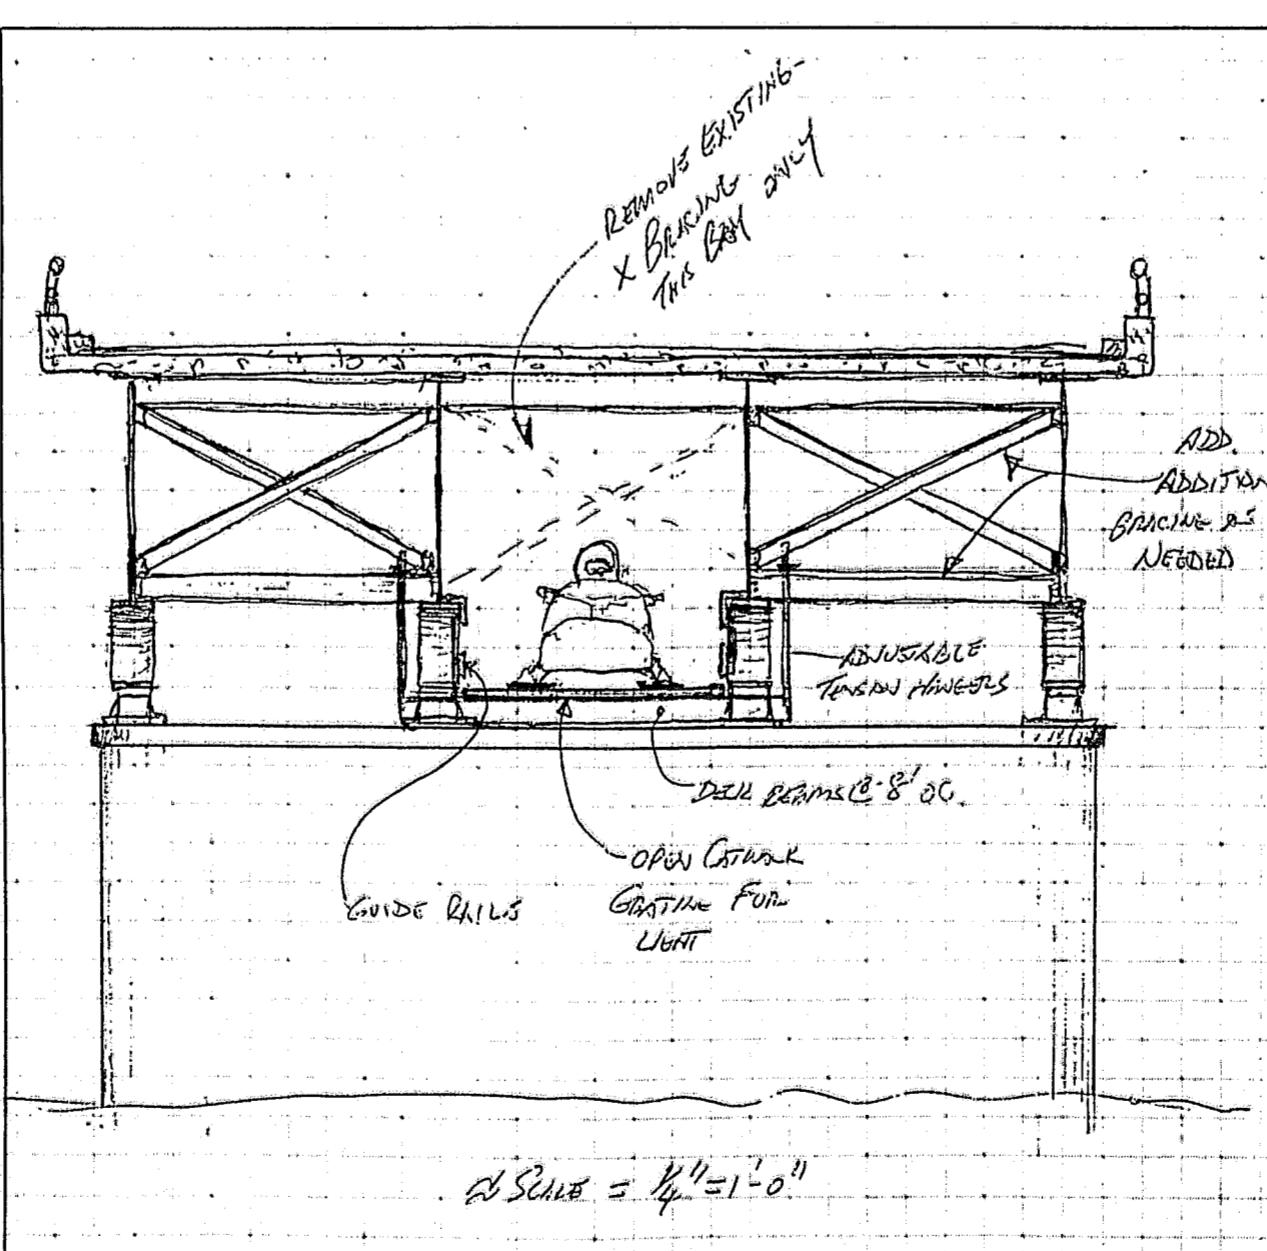

20 years ago: Darlene Merrill was employed in St. Croix, Virgin Islands, for the winter months. Charles Osgood was made assistant manager at the Bethel office of Casco Bank & Trust Co. (now Key Bank). Dr. Om Wadhera, Bethel doctor, announced plans to open an office in Rumford. Births: Laura Seames, Casey Parker. Marriage: Pamela Jabar and John Trinward. Deaths: Minnie Parker, Roland Kneeland.

30 years ago: Bethel girls installed in the institution of Rainbow Girls in Rumford were: Linda Carver, as drill leader and Nancy Young, as Patriotism. Claire Bachelder was winner of the 1967 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow Award at Gould Academy. Kristin Wiese and Bobby Brown, Crescent Park School students, were winners in the poster contest conducted in observance of Children's Dental Health Week. Births: Jeffrey Marston, Susan Gould. Marriages: Madeline Gammon and James Weston, Elizabeth Vollrath and John Willard Jr., Darlene Dunham and Garold Anderson. Deaths: Dwight Morrill, Clara Merrill, Mildred Nevers.

40 years ago: Roy and Hazel Wardwell celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a party in their honor at the Hunt's Corner Grange Hall. Names of active 4-H clubs in the area were: The Bethel Busy Bees, Maple Leaf 4-H Club, The Lucky Clover 4-H Club, Zippy Snappers 4-H Club. Nationwide backing was sought to create a conservation training program workshop on property at Bryant Pond (now site of Maine Conservation School). Birth: Kathy Davis. Deaths: John Compass, Roy Lord, Zella Hart.

50 years ago: Bryant's Market held its 70th anniversary sale. Gould Academy skiers captured three first places at Lyndonville, Vt. Marriage: Marjorie Thornton and Richard Stage.

100 years ago: Several western horses arrived in Bethel. Isaac Merrill shut down his mill and went into the woods in Albany to cut timber. The Bethel Chair Factory leased the rink building for five years and moved their stock into it, the ground floor to be used for office, general store and show room, the upper floor for upholstery and finishing department. Minnie Frost was installed to lead Sunset Rebekah Lodge 64. Much sickness was reported in Bethel. Dr. Hill was using anti-toxin to combat diphtheria. Two railroad cars were derailed at West Bethel.

IT'S JUST AN IDEA, sketched out at 2 a.m. in the morning, but Gould Academy engineer Jim Sysko, may have found a possible route around Bethel's snowmobile bridge below the current Route 2 bridge over the Androscoggin River. Sysko's plan calls for double-entry points at either end of the bridge, which would also make it less dangerous for snowmobilers to cross the highway. Any such plan must be approved both by engineers from the Maine Department of Transportation (which owns the bridge) and by the Bethel selectmen. At their meeting Monday night, the selectmen greeted the idea enthusiastically, but all involved agreed there are many hurdles to clear before such a plan could be realized. The other two alternatives for a snowmobile bridge still appear unworkable. Cantilevering it off the present structure would cost far more money than the town has available; and neither the town nor MDOT is likely to accept ownership of (and responsibility for) a new, freestanding bridge.

Briefly

Man charged in false shooting report

ALBANY--An Albany man was charged with making a false report and causing a false public alarm Sunday night after police responded to a report of a multiple shooting on Route 5. Seven officers from Oxford County, the state police and Bethel police responded to the report at about 5 p.m. When officers got to the scene there was no evidence of a shooting incident. Just before 7 p.m. Leroy C. Howard, 20, was arrested and taken to the Oxford County Jail. The charges are Class D misdemeanors.

Society receives record donations

BETHEL--The Bethel Historical Society had a record-breaking year in 1996, with the largest number of donors in its 30-year existence. Last year 380 donors contributed a total of $10,600, breaking the $10,000 mark for the first time. The largest number of donors in a previous year was 332, in the mid-1980s. Along with the record number of donations, the society also received what executive director Dr. Stanley Howe described as a generous bequest from the estate of Olive Head, who died last March. Those funds will be earmarked for the society's educational programs.

Children uninjured in bus mishap

BETHEL--Five kindergarten students escaped injury last Wednesday when their school bus was sideswiped by a car on Paradise Rd. Car driver Ken Hamel, 64, of Bethel was taken to Stephens Memorial Hospital, where he was kept overnight. Brenda Blaisdell of West Bethel was driving the bus south when Hamel's car, headed in the opposite direction, brushed the driver's side of the bus. Hamel's passenger, Cindy Smith, 17, of Bethel was not injured. The children were transferred to another bus a taken home. Police chief Dale Bellman said the narrow road probably contributed to the accident.

... as are teens in Songo accident

BETHEL--Two Bethel teenagers and a Maryland driver were uninjured last Wednesday in a two-car collision on the Songo Pond Road. Rachel Stowell, 18, of West Bethel, pulled out of a driveway into the path of a car driven by Gerald Hoff, 64, of Columbia, Md. Timothy Adams, 18, of Bethel was a passenger in Stowell's car. All three people were wearing seatbelts. Stowell's car sustained about $1,500 in damages, while Hoff's received about $500 in damage. No charges were filed in the accident.

Greenwood meets with auditor

GREENWOOD--A preliminary review of town finances has not turned up any serious irregularities, according to selectman chair Marie Bartlett. The selectmen met with auditor David Hoisington Monday. Bartlett stressed, however, that the audit will not be complete for about another week, and no final conclusions should be drawn until then. The audit, which is an annual process, was begun early this year following the resignation of Town Manager Liz Lavalette. Lavalette was indicted in December on grand larceny charges in connection with her former employment by the town of West Stockbridge, Mass.

Tower lights too bright?

GREENWOOD--Alcohol Mary Road resident Libby Sciacchitano is unhappy with the strobe lights that were installed last summer on the former Telstar system tower near her home. Sciacchitano came to the Planning Board Monday night seeking guidance regarding her complaint. She said she found the strobe lights more intrusive than the red ones they replaced. "I need to know that this was their (the tower's owners) only alternative," said Sciacchitano. Board members were uncertain where to refer her, and suggested she check with selectmen regarding the problem.

Dock size standards set

GREENWOOD--The Planning Board Monday endorsed a formula for figuring the maximum allowed size for docks on South Pond. Docks will be limited to 120 square feet, unless the shore frontage of the property exceeds 100 feet. The 120-foot figure is based on an average of existing docks. In cases where the frontage is more than 100 feet, the dock size is determined by a formula incorporating the frontage measurement. The method was developed by code enforcement officer Norm Putnam because the town's shoreland zoning ordinance was not specific in defining maximum size. Planning Board member Nancy Dewing said property owners' requests last summer to build docks made the board aware of the need for clearer criteria.

Certified agents aid wardens

RUMFORD--With a rabies epidemic and a shortage of staff, the Maine Warden Service is relying on nearly 800 certified agents to help handle wild animal complaints. The agents are licensed by the service to remove unwanted or sick wild animals. The service works with town animal control officers on wildlife complaints, but town policies vary on the officers' responsibilities. In Bethel, for instance, the animal control officer is responsible for domestic animals only. Other complaints are referred to the Warden Service.

ASC interested in Colorado resort

DILLON, Colo.--The American Skiing Company of Newry is among 60 potential buyers who have shown interest in purchasing the Arapahoe Basin ski area. The area was put up for sale in December as a result of the U.S. Justice Department's ruling on the merger between Vail and Keystone, Breckenridge and Arapahoe Basin. The department approved the merger that formed the largest ski company in the world, but insisted that Vail divest Arapahoe Basin to ensure there would be a competitor to protect skiers from sky-high ticket prices. The purchase price was estimated to likely fall between $18 million and $25 million. Vail has until June 2 to sell the ski area or the resort will be turned over to a trustee.

Car dealer pleads guilty to fraud

PORLTAND--An eastern Maine car dealer known for his creative sales gimmicks has pleaded guilty to wire fraud charges for inflating his sales reports to get bonuses from the manufacturer. Guy Philip Lenentine, 63, former owner of a Calais dealership selling General Motors vehicles, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court last week. He owned the dealership between 1985 and 1995. Court documents say Lenentine used computers, phones and a fax machine to tell the manufacturer he had sold cars that had actually not been sold, in order to inflate his sales figures and receive bonuses. Once cars are recorded as sold, their warranties take effect. It means consumers who eventually bought those vehicles could be deprived of full warranty protections, said FBI agent Paul Palumbo. Palumbo said the dealer would use the names of friends, employees, former employees or dead people as car buyers. The manufacturer would not check the identities of the supposed buyers, said Palumbo. Lenentine's business attracted widespread attention in 1994 when he agreed to accept a cow as a down payment for a new car. He had aired ads telling potential customers they could get $2,000 in trade for anything they could "push, pull or drag in."

Hinged snowboard hits market

FEDERAL WAY, Wash.--Jack Dovey and Tacoma inventor Walter Shannon are hoping their patented design for a "hinged" snowboard will not only appeal to experienced riders, but will also inspire enthusiasm among novices. The two men formed Hyarc Technologies, formerly Axxis Sport, to market and sell the Hyarc snowboard. They're hoping to capture the attention of an estimated 1 million people who have taken up the sport. At the heart of the new design is a control bar that connects two sections of board. The bar is attached to the top and runs parallel to the wood, epoxy and fiberglass board. The bindings ride on top of the bar. Making linked turns -- one right after another -- is the hardest part of learning how to ride a snowboard, Shannon said. With the new design, a rider turns by shifting weight to the front or back part of the board.

From the Bethel Police log: Intoxicated man finds police everywhere

On Feb. 1 at 11:09 p.m. a state trooper observed a male subject who appeared intoxicated inside the Route 2 Irving store. The man got into a vehicle and headed east. The vehicle then passed the Bethel police cruiser, also headed east. The officer observed the rear tail light and license plate were covered with snow, and he stopped the vehicle. The driver was given three field sobriety tests. Dennis J. Heraty, 29, of Boston, Mass., was arrested for OUI. A check revealed his license was under suspension. Mass., and he had no license in Maine. He also possessed a suspended license. He was additionally charged with operating without a license and possession of a suspended license.

Friday, Jan. 31

At 7:17 p.m. a juvenile reported being assaulted by another juvenile at the Casablanca Theater. The officer spoke with the complainant and observed the right side of her face to be red with finger marks. The complainant's friend, who witnessed the incident, said the subject entered the entrance area and first pushed the complainant, then slapped her across the face. The officer spoke with the subject, who said she did slap the complainant because of an incident that occurred last summer. The incident was to be referred to the juvenile case worker for further process.

At 8:15 p.m. a Tyler St. resident reported a snowmobile was riding up and down the street. Police spoke with the operator and advised him to stop riding in the road.

Sunday, Feb. 2

At 4:05 p.m. the driver of a vehicle that was eastbound on Martin's Lane lost control on a rough portion of the road. The vehicle struck the right snowbank and rolled one-quarter revolution onto the driver's side. A tow truck righted the vehicle, and the owner was able to drive it away.

At 5:36 p.m. an Oxford County officer requested that Bethel police respond to the Route 5/Hunt's Corner Road intersection and stand by for the arrival of additional units. The Oxford County Sheriff's Office had received a report of subjects having been shot. Once the additional units arrived the Bethel officer returned to routine patrol. The call was later found to be a prank.

Fees

AMC: make it voluntary

The Appalachian Mountain Club is supporting a voluntary fee system, Walter Graff, AMC deputy director, said that while his organization recognizes that the Forest Service has had severe budget cuts, "We are very concerned that a mandatory fee system would be very difficult and costly to administer. In addition the White Mountain National Forest is fortunate to have the support of many, many people who volunteer their time to help maintain trails and perform other tasks in the forest."

fee money could end up supporting timber harvest projects, WMNF public affairs specialist Alexis Jackson said, "No, Recreation and timber money are not interchangeable at all. The fee money couldn't even be used to pay for salaries for people working at my level on the (maintenance) projects. It's for the people working close to the ground."

She said the projects would be closely watched, and audited by both the public and Congress.

Regarding any concerns that future budgets might be reduced by the amount collected in fees, Forest Service official Nita Williams said, "There is clear language in the public law which prohibits Congress from proportionately reducing our budget by the amount we collect."

The fee pilot program is set up for a three-year period, and a year has already passed without WMNF participating. The program will be evaluated after the third year.

Anyone wanting to comment on the fee proposal may write by Feb. 7 to Fee Pilot, White Mountain National Forest, 719 Main St., Laconia, NH 03246-2772, or call Arthur Gigliello at 603-869-2626.

A public workshop is also scheduled for Feb. 22 at the Kennett High School gym in Conway, N.H., from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

GUNDERSEN HONORED
Robert Gunderson of the Bethel Wastewater Treatment Facility was honored last week as one of seven EPA Region I excellence award winners. The awards are made to the staff of municipal wastewater treatment plants who have demonstrated commitment to clean water. The awards were presented at the annual awards luncheon of the New England Water Environment Association, which was held in Boston.

ceiling trusses will have to be replaced, the roof will need repair, and the interior will have to be rebuilt, he said. The office was fully insured.

Following the fire, about six people on Stillman Road were left without water. When Central Maine Power dug a hole to set a new pole, crewmen struck a water pipe, Dixon said. The broken pipe was fixed by around 2 a.m. Sunday morning.

Town records have been temporarily moved to the Town Hall, where some town business will be conducted for now.

Dixon said he was particularly happy his department responded quickly enough to prevent the records from being destroyed.

"We were pretty proud of ourselves," he said.

Timothy Carter of Washington, D.C., recently spent several days last week visiting his parents, Dick and Lyndell Carter, at the Carter Farm, Middle Intervale.

Tim is the district supervisor of the Department of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Services in the New England Area, which includes communities from Bangor to Presque Isle and Farmington.

John Carter, Timothy's son, returned to Washington with his father to become familiar with the area and the political "scene." During John's absence, Chuck Haines will be assuming responsibilities at the farm.

Dick and Lyndell Carter visited Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Fogg of Freeport last week. While there they went to Bailey Island.

Nancy Buswell fell down the stairs at her home last Friday and was transported by Bethel Rescue to Stephens Memorial Hospital emergency department for X-rays and a doctor's examination to determine the extent of her injuries. She returned home after it was determined that she did not need to be hospitalized; and, according to her mother, Abigail Buswell, she is doing well.

A plowing accident caused an electrical fire at the Town Office Saturday. Most of the damage occurred in the new addition, which was gutted. The computers and most of the office equipment were destroyed. Most town records escaped damage. The town will set up business in the Town Hall next week with their regular hours and phone service. Many thanks to the Fire Department for their prompt response and to the other volunteers, including Al Legault, who worked gathering and transporting files and documents. Extra complications were experienced when the power company's vehicle damaged a hydrant which caused a loss of water to the neighborhood.

The Calvary Congregational Church invites all to cheer on the Grand Prix racers during the competition to be held Sunday, Feb. 8, beginning at 6 p.m. at the church. The evening AWANA club members, helpers and leaders have all been busy building cars for the race. Refreshments will be served. First-and second-grade Sunday School members enjoyed a pizza party hosted by their leader, Marge Stinson. Brownie sundae and games were enjoyed. Among those attending were Patrick Milligan, Chris Mejias, Matthew Farrington, Rachel Chinery, A.J. Clifford, guest Lindsey Milligan and co-hosts Lorena Simmons. A good time was had by all.

Congratulations to Kevin and Kelly Morton for the birth of a son, Zachary Wayne, who was born on Jan. 22 at Franklin Memorial Hospital. Zachary weighed in at 8 pounds, 5 ounces. He joins an older sister, Candace. Paternal grandparents are Wayne and Marilyn Morton and paternal great-grandparents are Lester and Jean White. His maternal grandmother is Marie Halacy of Rumford Center and maternal great-grandmother is Mrs. Alice Pearce.

Take advantage of its offerings. Attend a meeting, talk with members, and enjoy the exhibits. You might decide to become a member yourself.

The officers and committees of the society give generously of their time and resources to make the organization a success. Perhaps you can contribute, too. Curator Larry Billings has served the society for nearly 18 years. He finds it challenging to manage the museum. He often sends things through the mail to members. This time it was valentines. Next meeting will be Saturday, Feb. 8.

Six members of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Hannah F. Richardson Tent 19 met at the home of Eleanor Smith at Waterford on Wednesday evening, Jan. 22. At this meeting installation of officers was done for the current year. Past Maine Dept. Pres. Gail Butterfield was the installing officer. Discussion was made concerning the convention in June. Frances Grant won the mystery prize. Next meeting is planned for Feb. 26 at the same place and same time.

I haven't been home for five days, as Carol and Albert Nelson Jr. and I flew to Virginia to visit Cheryl and Paul Barnard and family in Seaford. Cheryl works at the Newport News Airport and met us there. Virginia is a very historic place. This time we went to Williamsburg and Yorktown, as well as Fort Monroe and in the Moat. It was quite cool there this time of year, so we were glad we took our winter wraps.

When we got home, we got the sad news that Walter Heino was in the Norway hospital, and our thoughts and prayers are with his family now, as he passed away on Jan. 24. He leaves his wife, Carolyn, and four sisters and one brother and several nieces and nephews. Graveside services will be held in the spring.

Mrs. Gladys Plummer has been in the Norway hospital recently after having a fall.

Delbert McAllister is at home now after being in Stephens Memorial Hospital a few days.

Gary Millett from California and Las Vegas is in town visiting with his mother, Geneva Tripp, and other family members for a week.

Wilma Taylor is in Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

The Stoneham Knight Riders Snowmobile Club is putting on a public supper at the Stoneham Fire Station on Feb. 8. It will be between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. The menu will consist of baked beans, ham, chop suey, cole slaw, hot rolls, pies and beverages. You may come by snowmobile or car, but just please come and meet with us and eat with us.

Roy and Diane Johnson and Joshua are at home after being away to Mexico for a week's vacation. Joshua, who is a sophomore at the Academy, got to use a little of the Spanish he has been studying.

The Stoneham Volunteer Firemen met for their monthly meeting Tuesday evening, Jan. 28. Winners of the raffle drawings this week were Linda Rolfe, Deborah Jones, Betty Siegel and Ken Towne. A new member, Travis Fox, was taken into the department.

I believe we got a good foot of snow from the last snowstorm and people are still digging out from it and shoveling off roofs and getting ready for the next snowstorm that is predicted.

Congratulations to Heidi Shugars, Heather Shugars and Kristen Rolfe

who got on the honor roll at their school. Good work, girls.

Wilma Taylor is at home now after being in Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway for a few days.

A new month arrives this week. February is the time I always dreaded, when I walked to school. It seemed to be colder, as the wind swept over the pond when I made the turn west toward home.

February's sun, I knew sent sharper angled rays to white-blanketed hills and fields and there was a mellowness on quiet, sunny days, foretold by the closing era of winter.

It is the time when our sleeping earth stirs. When the thermometer says zero and blustery snow and sleet make treacherous footing. When this storm-spilling and dark clouds give away to blue skies, we know time is hitching itself upward toward spring. This helps to make thoughts better. Day by day the light grows longer and sunset's glory lingers above the mountains.

Yes, February can be contradictory, and I recall the cold, cold days, but each day that chips off another sliver shrinks winter.

A late winter sunset marks the end of a day. I look at the seasonal beauty and it lifts my heart, as I read the message.

The main interest this last week has been the snow-fighting game and the football game.

David Holt was at his parents' home on Sunday, and we quietly celebrated his birthday. His mother had made him a birthday cake.

Timmy Curtis has left for the service.

Our sympathy goes to Sally Holt and her family for the death of her father, Walter Sambor, on Jan. 26, 1997, at the Maine Veterans Home. He was 83. Survivors include his wife Betty of Ledgeview Nursing Home, five sons, one sister, one brother and his devoted daughter, Sally Sambor Holt, and his son-in-law David Holt.

Upton

by Amy Geiling
Hello February! There's two (2) feet of snow in Upton and three (3) feet in Newry. The lake is great for ridin' now. Trout fishing on the lake is open now and the Upton Trading Post has shiners. If you are feeling cabin fever, take a ride up.

Sympathy is extended to Richard LeComte for the passing of his sister.

So Dappy, does Jerry have his own Afghan yet?

You probably have noticed that I terminated the Trivia Time. Thank you to all Upton Trivia Fan Club members that helped find the facts.

Saturday, ice fishermen seemed pleased with their catches and the warmer temps. O.K. readers, listen up! Upton wants you -- so the first person today (Wed. Feb. 5) to come through the Upton Trading Post door and sing the blues about cabin fever wins a free six-ounce bag of chips. Here's the rules. The song must be at least four lines and be about cabin fever. It must be sung, not spoken to Amy, Jerry or Matthew. The song will be printed in next week's Citizen in the Upton column.

Here's the example: (1) I'm sitting in this house on a cold winter day; (2) Yeah, I'm sitting in this house on a cold winter day; (3) I'd rather be fishin'; (4) So come and take me away.

North Newry

by Gil Seeley
My aloe vera plant is blooming again for the fourth year. Does anyone else have one that blooms? I would like to know. Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley and Bea Lowell of the Newry Bowling Gang were at the Oxford Lanes in Rumford one day last week. On the overall scores, Betsy was high on the singles with one string of 107. She was high on the triples, beating Gil by seven pins. She had five spares and one strike, Gil had two spares and one strike, Karlene had four spares and one strike, and Bea had one spare.

The Newry Mothers' Club will meet Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m., at the Town Building with a valentine exchange at the social hour, mystery prize by Mary Morin, and Karlene Bachelder and Gil Seeley will be on the refreshment committee.

Well, my car was buried under 14 inches of snow and I didn't think I would be able to use it again till spring, but my good neighbor Karlene came to help dig it out. Thank God, I hope the snow and Mother Nature take pity on me and don't do that again.

Prediction... I hate to mention this, but at the new moon on the 7th expect some dismal weather -- deep snow and very cold. It is only two degrees above zero as I write this at 3 p.m. Is spring so far away?

Locke Mills

by Lorraine Mills
Well, slowly but surely I am getting over the prevailing bug, I know because every day it is in some new place. When I first come down with something it attacks my nose and throat, then it goes to my sinuses, then my ears, etc. It is as if those little bugs say, "Here comes the army; let's go hide somewhere new." Hopefully, they will get tired after a while. I certainly am.

We certainly have been having one of the oddest and changeable weather pattern this winter that I can remember in quite a while. It goes from warm to cold and back again and from snow to rain and back again. Most of the time the traveling is lousy, and I hope it's not affecting Mt. Abram. It must be very discouraging for any business that is dependent on the seasons.

Gerry Shimamura and I were in Norway one day recently. On the way home we did some exploring of a couple roads we wondered where they went to. She's always game for doing that. Most people had rather know where they are at all times.

High Street

West Paris by Russell Yates Howdy, friends. This is another snowy morning, this 28th day of January, but I am afraid that rain here before it is Peggy and I attended Franklin Grange last Monday evening, which started off with a delicious potluck supper about 6:30 p.m. We had quite a nice attendance and both the supper and meeting went real well. At this meeting it was voted to delay the working of the subordinate degrees until Saturday, Feb. 22. If other granges who have candidates waiting for degrees bring them to Franklin Grange in Bryant Pond on that date, we will be glad to work the subordinate degrees on them. Lunch will be provided for all Grangers present.

We went down street last Tuesday morning, as Peggy had business to take care of at Market Square Nursing Home and she needed to go to Wal-Mart to have a prescription filled.

Peggy was at Northeast Tire Company on Wednesday morning to have an oil change and a grease job done on her car. Isn't it amazing how fast the miles add up. We both worked hard Wednesday afternoon, trying to smooth our front yard some. A truck had been in when it was real soft, making deep ruts, and then it froze solid, making it real rough. We did make some improvement to the problem.

We had to go down street again on Thursday as Peggy had an appointment with her doctor and I had to go to the hospital for a blood test. We picked up our weekly supply of groceries and did other errands while in town. I wanted to get my wrist watch at Hutchins Jewelers in Norway, but for some reason the place was closed. I had previously left the watch to be cleaned.

The temperature got up to about 45 degrees in the forenoon, but by the time we were ready to go to bed, it had dropped to 9 degrees -- quite a change.

Doc Merrill visited us for a short time Friday afternoon. Then I had to take my truck down to Western Auto in Norway to have an oil and oil filter change. I wasn't gone long, and after returning home I went to the West Paris town sand pile, where I got a small load of sand to put into my sandbox at the front end of our mobile home, for emergency use.

Richard Felt of Bryant Pond called on us in the early evening.

We got snow, sleet and rain Friday night and Saturday morning. It finally did stop, and our nephew, David Yates, plowed out our front yard with his truck. After dinner that day, Peggy and I both tackled finishing the job. We have some paths to clear as well as quite an area back of the mobile home.

Saturday evening, Doc Merrill came up here and the three of us went to Locke Mills to the dance in Peggy's car. Doc has been having problems with his car, and after having it at two different garages it still isn't right.

When we got back in the late evening, Doc left his car here at our place and we took him home to be sure that he got there okay.

I spent Sunday forenoon hauling sand from the town sand pile to sand the icy area around our home. I had to haul three loads of sand to complete the job.

Sonja Haverinen of South Paris was a visitor at the Lovejoy home Monday.

The Lovejoy family took a ride up into Gorham, N.H., on Sunday, to check out some of the stores.

There will be a dance at the Locke Mills Town Hall on Feb. 8, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra.

Gary Webb is off again to the Arctic

By CYNTHIA CURTIS

This week, Gary Webb, owner of the Atlantic Driving School, who teaches driver education classes at Telstar High School, will once again head north on an Arctic Arctic Adventure.

For the past two years in February, Webb has participated in the Rally of the Lost Patrol, a road rally which traveled 6,000 miles from Seattle, Wash., to Inuvik in the Northwest Territories of Canada -- 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle -- and back again in 10 days.

On Wednesday, Feb. 5, Webb will fly to Seattle where he will be joined the next day by two former students, Melissa Williams and Shane Wilson from South Paris, and instructors, Cynthia Curtis, also from South Paris, Karl Chevalier from Rutland, Vt., and Marco Lashin from Lake Wales, Fla.

Curtis and Chevalier also instruct driving at Telstar with Webb, and Curtis accompanied Webb on the rally last winter.

In Seattle, the group will meet with Jon Parsons of Vancouver, British Columbia, who is a specialist in off-road winter driving; Sharon Ester from Seattle, an expert rescue leader; Richard Crossier from Seattle, a Boeing Aircraft engineer; Satch Carbon, an Alaskan who organized the Rally of the Lost Patrol; and Peter Linde, a Washington State Trooper.

On Feb. 7, the team of six vehicles will head north for the ultimate winter driving experience, traveling about nine days to the Arctic and back.

After racing two days of the Thunderbird Rally in B.C., on remote roads with average speeds of 50 miles per hour with check points in hidden locations, the group will continue north at a more leisurely pace.

"We're not going to do any extreme days," Webb says. "Last year, there were days when we got up at 5 a.m., drove over 600 miles, and pulled into a hotel at 10 p.m. This year, I plan to drive more in the daylight. We'll probably leave about 8 a.m. every day, and if everything goes right, we should be at a hotel or inn between 5 to 7 p.m., and have a real meal."

There should be an average of about six hours of daylight in British Columbia and about five hours in the Yukon.

One highlight of this year's trip, as it was in years past, will be a dip in the natural "hot tub" of Liard Hot Springs near the B.C.-Yukon border -- a plunge from minus 30 to minus 40 degrees F air into steaming hot water, with huge icicles hanging from the surrounding trees. But this year, the group will stay at the new Laird Springs Lodge nearby instead of driving another 200 miles.

On the sixth day (Feb. 12), the adventurers will drive from Dawson City, Yukon, on the Dempster Highway to the Arctic Circle -- latitude 66 degrees 33' north.

After picture-taking at the Arctic Circle sign, they will return to Dawson City, or, if the weather is bad, they'll stay at Eagle Plains, population 8,222 miles south of the Circle.

The route will include the Alaska Highway, Rocky Mountain passes, and frozen river highways, about 5,000 miles of it on ice and snow-covered roads, with temperatures ranging from 40 to 60 degrees below zero in the Yukon.

Webb says it is very important to have an experienced driver in every car, because with white-outs and 100 mile-per-hour winds on ice-covered roads, it's critical to understand the danger of stopping or getting stuck.

And the danger of moose in the roads may be greater this year, because they've had a lot of snow in B.C., and the moose have had a hard time moving in the woods, so they're using the roads to move at night to find food.

The New Englanders will fly home from Seattle on Feb. 18.

A number of businesses are supporting the excursion: Radio City will provide radio equipment for the vehicles, Kise Stamp & Sign of Oxford will letter the vehicles, and L.L. Bean is supplying Arctic gear. Radio station WOZO (92.7) will broadcast daily announcements at 11 a.m. to update the team's adventure.

N.H. AUDUBON SOCIETY

The North Country Chapter of N.H. Audubon Society monthly meeting will be held Friday, Feb. 21, at 7 p.m. at the N.H. Community Technical College, Riverside Drive, Berlin, N.H.

Following a brief meeting, a program will be presented entitled "Tips and Techniques for Improving Your Birding," which is aimed at all, but with special suggestions and help for the very beginner. It will include attitudes and expectations, habits and habitats, and visual cues. North Country Audubon welcomes everyone to its free programs, after which refreshments will be served.

On Saturday, Feb. 15, the society will host a field trip along the Androscoggin River, north of Milan, N.H., in search of winter birds. Participants should bring binoculars, dress warmly and meet at the Milan General Store at 7:30 a.m.

Matters of Health

From Boston University Medical Center

Benign ovarian cysts: Generally not serious conditions

My niece has just been diagnosed as having a benign ovarian cyst. Is this a serious disease? What is involved in treating it?

There are a number of different types of ovarian cysts and tumors. Some occur asymptotically in all women as part of the normal menstrual process. Others occur occasionally with symptoms and have no known cause. Some cysts and tumors result from a hormonal imbalance. Generally, they are not serious.

Ovarian cysts that occur normally each month during the reproductive years are called functional cysts. The most common of these, called follicular cysts, form from a normal follicle that has failed to burst open and release an egg. Filled with clear fluid, these cysts generally disappear within the course of one menstrual cycle. "Usually, they are asymptomatic," says Valena Soto-Wright, MD, associate director of gynecologic oncology at Boston Medical Center. "Every woman not using hormonal contraception forms functional cysts each month, never knowing of their existence."

A growth that is not a functional cyst is called a neoplasm, which may be benign or malignant. Unlike functional cysts, neoplasms may have solid components and require treatment. The most common neoplasm, called a dermoid cyst, is a benign growth that may develop into any adult tissue. The cysts often contain a combination of fluid and solid material.

Some benign cysts result from a hormonal problem, as is the case in polycystic disease. In this disease, chronic anovulation (failure to ovulate), which can result from a variety of hormonal disturbances, causes ovarian enlargement by leaving many small cysts in the places where follicles normally would have burst. Usually, however, neoplasms have no known cause.

While most functional cysts will pass without incident, some become problematic. A cyst that ruptures can cause internal bleeding that needs to be corrected surgically. A cyst that causes twisting of an ovary can damage irrevocably an otherwise healthy ovary by cutting off its blood supply. Some may cause a woman to feel pain during intercourse or to feel pressure or fullness in her abdomen or pelvis. If the cyst is pressed against the bladder or bowels, there may be irregularities in their function. Some cysts cause irregularities in the menstrual cycle. In all of these cases, a woman should be examined by her gynecologist.

While rare, some of these occurrences, particularly bleeding cysts, can be life threatening. "If you have any unusual abdominal or pelvic pain, you should go to a doctor," says Soto-Wright, noting, however, that most ruptured cysts do resolve on their own without causing complications.

Suspected cysts will likely be investigated with an ultrasound test.

Premenopausal women will also be tested for pregnancy to rule out ectopic (tubal) pregnancy. While functional cysts can usually be identified during ultrasound, complex cysts may require further diagnostic procedures.

Though most cysts will turn out to be benign (93 percent in premenopausal women, 70 percent in postmenopausal women), surgical intervention will be required to establish the diagnosis. Either cystectomy (cyst removal), or removal of the cyst, or oophorectomy (removal of the ovary), or removal of the ovary, may be performed.

Surgical intervention is dependent on the physical assessment of the cyst, as well as the patient's age and medical history. A young woman with a small cyst may be followed over the course of several menstrual cycles. If the cyst persists, surgery may be performed. A woman with a large cyst, or an older woman who is past the age of menstruation, may receive more immediate action, as "postmenopausal women should not be getting functional cysts at all," says Soto-Wright.

Treatment of a benign cyst is determined by the problem it is causing. Hormone therapy will be warranted to treat polycystic disease. A persistent cyst, or one that is affecting other organs, will usually be removed and tested for malignancy. A third type of growth, the malignant variety, is the most worrisome type of tumor, and, by far, the least common.

This "Matters of Health" was written in cooperation with Valena Soto-Wright, MD, associate director of gynecologic oncology at Boston Medical Center. Readers with questions about ovarian cysts, or those who wish to discuss other health issues, may contact the BMC Health Connection at 617-638-6767.

Michael Cooper to perform

He's got multiple heads, an enormous nose and a great sense of humor -- all of which are blended together in a wonderful family entertainment performance.

Michael Cooper combines exquisite, handmade masks with captivating classical and original stories told in prose, poetry or silent mime that are sure to please young and old alike. Cooper will be performing on Saturday, Feb. 8, at 7 p.m. at the South Ridge Base Lodge at Sunday River Ski Resort as part of the Black Diamond Family Entertainment Series.

Tickets for this family event are $6 for children (12 and under) and $8 for adults in advance, or $8 and $10 at the door. Tickets may be purchased on-mountain at the Welcome Center, the Snow Cap Inn and the Summit Hotel or at Preb's Pharmacy in Bethel. For more information, please call 824-3575.

Michael Cooper's one-man show "Head to Tales" is indeed a celebration of life. Taking up to 300 hours to produce a single paper, cloth or wooden mask, Michael has elevated this most ancient of theater crafts to the level of a fine art. Cooper is a man with a gift for "mummery," the ancient art of pretending, typically in disguise. His original masks and stilt characters are truly mythic in dimensions. With the aid of masks and a vivid imagination, he transforms himself in a myriad of characters including a rooster, a fish, an oversize baby boy and even a giant nose.

Laughter and audience participation, a humorous and energetic style ranging from lyrical to madcap, and stories that encourage creativity, compassion and a greater sense of self-worth are interwoven to create a one-of-a-kind performance not to be missed.

With over two decades of performing experience, Michael is truly a master of "maskular" mirth. His credits include the Brooklyn Academy of Music, the Eugene O'Neill Theatre, the Richmond Children's Festival, the Mayfair Festival in Pennsylvania, the Love Affair Festival in Georgia and the children's festivals and theaters across the United States and Canada.

News from School Administrative District #44: Andover • Bethel • Greenwood • Newry • Woodstock

SAD 44 Receives High Marks in State Visit

Four members of the State Department of Education visited SAD44 on Thursday, Jan. 23, to conduct a thorough review of the Improving America's Schools Act programs currently in place in this district.

Programs reviewed include, Title I (formerly Chapter I) services, Professional Development Opportunities (Title II), Safe and Drug Free Schools programs (Title VI), and Innovative Education Practices (Title VI).

Visitors from the state included Lois Whitcomb, director of Compensatory Education; Kathy Manning; Roger Richards and Dennis Kunes. During their time in the district the team assumed various responsibilities.

Students, staff, and parents were interviewed with regard to all aspects of the IASA funds currently spent in the district. SAD44 receives approximately $147,000 as a result of these federal funds.

After spending a complete day visiting the schools, the review team met with members of the IASA team to report its findings.

These findings included several recommendations including the integration of technology into the schools, a strong commitment to early literacy as evident through the district's continuing support of the Reading Recovery® program.

Another commendation was in the area of Title IV, Safe and Drug Free Schools, for the district's comprehensive K-12 Drug and Alcohol Prevention program.

A final commendation focused on the connections that the schools have made with Even Start and Head Start. A particular area of success focused on the development of the Fast Track program at Crescent Park which coordinates activities and efforts between Head Start and the local elementary school.

In the area of recommendations, the committee reminded the district of the need to develop parent involvement policies as a component of a parent compact for each building in the district over the course of the next year.

They also suggested extending the substance abuse counselor position at the high school from a part-time to a full-time position.

Another recommendation was to allow educational technicians the opportunity to attend an upcoming conference in southern Maine.

The final recommendation was that a better format of data collection be pursued for Project Assist, a program currently being piloted in the district. It was also pointed out that the IASA team should meet on an annual basis to continue reviewing the five-year IASA plan accepted by the Board of Directors in June of 1996.

A third area the review team focuses on is citations. Citations are areas where the district may be in violation of particular components of the IASA plan or may be showing no progress with regard to certain aspects that the plan requires. SAD44 did not receive any citations as a result of this review.

GED Has Proud Tradition

A prominent feature of the Adult Education program in the Telstar Region is GED preparation and testing, one way an adult may earn a high school credential.

The GED (more formally known as the Tests of General Educational Development) is a testing process to measure what a student knows and can apply. The other route is through course work leading to a traditional high school diploma through the accumulation of credits.

The GED tests are given to persons 17 years of age and older who have failed to complete high school for a variety of reasons.

Through course work at sites throughout the United States and Canada, including right here at the Adult Learning Center and in Andover, they work to raise their skills to pass the five GED tests in writing including an essay component, social studies, science, literature and math.

Preparation time for the GED varies with the individual with some taking months or years to become ready. The tests are not easy; they are normed on graduating high school seniors. Thirty percent of graduating seniors are unable to pass the tests.

The first GED tests were given in 1943, developed for U.S. servicemen to enable them to get credit for skills and knowledge acquired during their military service. The GED test is administered by the American Council on Education, based in Washington, D.C. More than 12 million persons have earned GED credentials since 1949.

In 1989, GED candidates were surveyed to determine their reasons for not completing high school. Reasons given as most important were disengagement from school (24 percent), marriage or pregnancy (20 percent), home and family problems (18 percent), and employment-related reasons (15 percent).

A 1993 report found that GED graduates in community colleges, on average, perform on par with traditional high school graduates in number of credits earned and grade point average. In 1995, 64% of test takers planned to undertake further education and training beyond the high school level.

In 1995, Maine reported a 14-percent increase from the previous year in test batteries completed, with 2,848 completed, and 2,472 passing. Maine has had a consistently high rate of passing due to the widespread use of the GED Practice Tests, and the strength and availability of local adult education programs.

The average age of those taking the test in Maine is 25, which is right in line with the national average. Special versions of the GED tests are available in Spanish, French, Audio-cassette, Braille and Large Print.

In Maine, five people took the test in Spanish, one in French, and two individuals used the large print edition. In SAD44 there were no requests for the special versions.

Adults with professionally diagnosed and documented disabilities may apply for special accommodations including extended time, use of special optical devices, and alternative answer-recording methods.

In Maine, two such accommodations were granted in 1995. Adult education programs have found that such accommodations are difficult to obtain, in large part because of the expense of the necessary testing required to document the disability.

The GED has assisted adults in moving on to higher education or employment for more than 50 years. Adults interested in joining this proud tradition may call the Adult Education office at 824-2780.

Ben Shimamura Wins CPS Geography Bee - Moves one step closer to $25,000 Scholarship

Ben Shimamura, a fifth-grade student at Crescent Park School, won the school-level competition of the National Geography Bee on Jan. 13 and a chance at a $25,000 college scholarship.

The school-level bee, at which students answered oral questions on geography, was the first round in the ninth annual National Geography Bee. The bee is sponsored by the National Geographic Society and Sylvan Learning Center®, which provide supplemental education services to students at all skill levels.

The kick-off for this year's bee was the week of Dec. 2, with thousands of schools around the United States and in the five U.S. territories participating. The school winners, including Ben Shimamura, will now take a written test; up to 100 of the top scorers in each state and territory will be eligible to compete in their state bee on April 4.

The National Geographic Society will provide an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., for state champions and their teacher-escorts to participate in the National Geography Bee national championship on May 27 and 28. The first-place national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship. Alex Trebek, host of "Jeopardy!", will moderate the national finals.

For the first time, a series of geography contests will be offered on National Geographic Online's new "kids" site, to debut in early 1997 (www.nationalgeographic.com).

The National Geographic Society developed the National Geography Bee in response to a growing concern about the lack of geographic knowledge among young people in the United States. A 10-country Gallop survey conducted for the society in 1988 and 1989 found that people in the United States ages 18 to 24 -- the youngest group surveyed -- knew less about geography than young people in any of the other countries in the survey.

The National Geographic Society, with nine million members, has as its mission the "increase and diffusion of geographic knowledge." In addition to the National Geographic Bee, the society sponsors a number of other geography education initiatives, including summer geography institutes for teachers and the Geographic Alliance Network, which is currently working in every state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and Canada.

Crescent Park School Celebrates Cultures Near and Far

Beginning in December of 1996, students and staff at the Crescent Park School began a two-month study of various countries throughout the world in an effort to promote cultural awareness and tie in various aspects of SAD44's new social studies curriculum.

For the past several weeks, classroom teachers have designed activities around specific cultures focusing on various aspects such as cooking, games, art, folk tales, and traditions. Guest speakers and various presentations to the students have heightened the interest of this project.

Coordination with the music teacher has allowed for specific cultural songs to be included in each grade level's activity.

A final assembly, to be held on Feb. 7, will conclude the project by allowing each grade level to focus on one particular component and share it with the school. Throughout that day, displays and exhibits will be highlighted throughout the building.

During the two months of this project, each grade level has identified itself by designing country-specific decorations in their areas of specific hallways. Some examples of the activities occurring include:

Kindergarten -- An estimation bulletin board on which students estimate the size of kangaroos using unifix cubes. This ties in social studies and math components of the curriculum. Large Australian animals are colored, labeled, and displayed throughout the classrooms and a great deal of discussion and various presentations have occurred focusing on Australia.

Grade One -- Staff and students have worked to decorate the hall to resemble a French cafe complete with awnings, lanterns, and flags. Speakers from the community have included Mrs. Ouwinga, who has taught the children some aspects of the French language, special presentations, and the learning of the song "Alouette" in addition to many other activities occurring in individual classrooms.

Grade Two -- This focus has been on Africa. Students have done a great deal of research on this particular country and have been exposed to a variety of speakers. Various aspects of the African project have been simulated through components of all curriculum areas. Students celebrated African Art Day and made Kufi hats, Kente cloth, Egyptian beads, and ceremonial masks. Many items are proudly displayed in the second-grade hallways.

Grade Three -- The focus here has been on Sweden. This project has included research on customs of the holidays. Students have also researched the American Girl Doll, Kirsten. Speakers have included Ki Clough and other members of the community. Art projects focused on making Swedish flags and good luck birds, a custom of Sweden.

Grade Four -- This grade has chosen Canada. A maple leaf has been made and displayed in the hall along with a large Canadian flag. Mrs. Ouwinga has also worked with that grade level teaching French. Brian Stowell talked about living in Canada and provided the students with many experiences he had during the time spent there. Students also had the opportunity to view a film on Canada's land and its people. Once again, various aspects of this study have been woven into other areas of the curriculum.

Grade Five -- This grade has concentrated on Ireland. They have researched the customs of the people, viewed slides from Ms. Tupper's time in Ireland, and experimented with baking Irish soda bread. In addition, they viewed River Dance, the history of the Irish in America and the importance of Irish dancing as a custom.

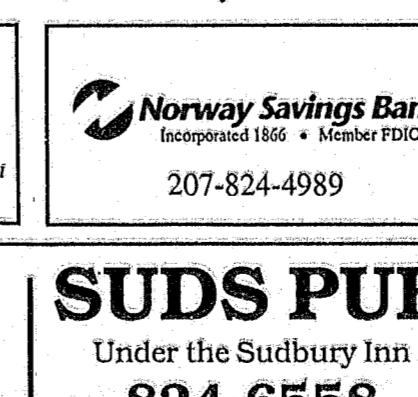

In conclusion, the various aspects of this project have allowed students to better understand the uniqueness of individual countries. The project will conclude with a plethora of events on Feb. 7 which will be open to all members of the community.

TMS seventh-graders enjoyed several activities as part of their two-day Medieval Fair. Students are shown here dipping candles. Other activities included: juggling, building castles, cooking and decorating, drama presentation, chess tournament, shield contest, wrestling, computer activities and movies.

PLANS APPROVED--The Bethel Board of Selectmen has tentatively approved plans (facing page) for the long-delayed infrastructure work on Mechanic Street. The project, which represents the final stage of the multi-year inflow and infiltration removal project, is expected to go to bid within a month and be completed by mid-summer. Work involved includes replacing storm and sewer lines, rebuilding and repaving the road, installing granite curbs along both sides of the road, and a sidewalk along one side. The project is expected to cost just over $260,000. The town is paying approximately 15 percent of the cost, with the remainder to come from federal funds.

A.L.A. JOY OF SKIING

The 10th annual Joy of Skiing, sponsored by the American Lung Association and the Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center will be held on Saturday, Feb. 22.

Designated dining locations on the cross-country ski trail system offer skiers a progressive picnic on skis. "A number of our old favorites are back, like fresh donuts made right on the trail," said Judy Lovejoy from Rumford, who is the volunteer coordinating the event this year.

Each hour between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. a different dining station will open, with a hot entree served at noon at the covered bridge. Typical foods served include fruit and cheese, hearty soup, muffins and chocolate chip cookies.

Skiers can pre-register for only $6 or $7 the day of event ($4 for kids 5-12). The registration fee covers all food associated with the event throughout the day. Participants will also pay the normal trail fee. Proceeds go to help the American Lung Association of Maine programs to fight lung disease. For more information, call Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center at 824-2410.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN UNITED

The Christian Women United will hold their monthly meeting at Shorelands in Harrison on Tuesday, Feb. 18. Dinner will be served at 11:30 a.m. Barbara Morrisette of Norway will be the speaker and music will be furnished by David Knightly of Oxford and Ben Conant of South Paris.

Those who have not been contacted but would like a reservation may call Leora Whitney at 743-7221 or Pearl Anderson at 743-5724 by Wednesday, Feb. 12.

LINCOLN DAY DINNER

Becky Kendall and Nancy Hansen, co-chairs of the 1997 annual Lincoln Day Dinner sponsored by the Oxford County Republican Committee, announced this week that the event this year will be held on Saturday, Feb. 22, at the Bethel Inn Conference Center, beginning with a social hour at 6 p.m.

As this is the centenary of Margaret Chase Smith's birth, the event will be dedicated to the former senator, who represented Maine in Congress for more than 30 years.

A buffet dinner with maple walnut chicken and carved roast beef will be served at 7 p.m., and at 8 p.m. the program will be kicked off by United States Sen. Susan Collins (R-Maine). Following her remarks, Dr. Gregory Gallant, director of the Margaret Chase Smith Library, will address the gathering and highlight the Senator's life and career.

There will also be special music and Rep. Alvin Barth (R-Bethel) will once again serve as auctioneer to raffle off a variety of items including a Bethel Inn condo vacation, Sea Dog tickets, restaurant meals and political memorabilia.

Reservations are required by Feb. 18 and no tickets will be sold at the door. Those wishing to order tickets at $20 per person should call Becky Kendall at 824-3196 or send a check payable to the Oxford County Republican Committee to her at P.O. Box 472, Bethel, ME 04217.

GOING FOR THE GOLD—The Agnes Gray School in West Paris recently held its annual Klondike Derby. Sled teams traveled to various stations set up around the school and answered questions. Gold nuggets were awarded for each correct answer. The winning teams were the ones that finished the race with the most nuggets, with time becoming a factor in the event of a tie. Here, teams nicknamed the Lightning Bolts and the Unstoppable Huskies prepare to start the race. ## Love is Remembering. Days Not to be Forgotten

The first meeting of a young bridal couple, on August 20, 1932 when they came on that

Saturday and registered at "Sunny Ridge" for a weekend. Over the years, this couple, James Knight and his bride, and I have spoken many times of that weekend of wedding bliss, with overnight in a cabin at "Sunny Ridge" at the price of $1.00 per person. Saturday supper in the tearoom dining room was 35 cents per person. Sunday morning breakfast was 25 cents per person, including coffee, and Sunday noon dinner or Roast Turkey, Chicken or Sirloin Steak, which was a 3-course meal at 75 cents per person. And James would smile when he said, "I had $10.00 in my pocket for that weekend, and although I bought some things at the tearoom store, I still returned to our

"Pinhook" home with money in my pocket." Years went by, I married and moved to the town of Woodstock, and gained much "Friendship" with this couple -- my true, trusted friends. The couple joined the Universalist Church of Bryant Pond and attended services, worked and gave financially to its aid. Improvements were made at the church and James was always there to labor many, many hours, never charging a penny.

Also, every summer he kept the yard and lawn cleaned and mowed. Much more could be related about this man, as I have known him over the years. But you all knew this honest, loyal, Christian man
